Berlin Says 50 Divisions
Storm Through Burning
Danzig, Gdynia

LONDON, March 22—Berlin admitted today that a violent Russian offensive had broken up a 65-mile defensive front in northwest Hungary, opening the way to Vienna and the mountain fastnesses of southeastern Germany.

Powerful Soviet onslaughts between Lake Balaton and the Danube northwest of Budapest shoved the Germans back on the approaches to Austria. The Russians captured Esztergom, on the Danube 22 miles northwest of Budapest; Tata, 29 miles northwest of Budapest and 94 southeast of Vienna; and Felsogalla, 10 south-east of Tata.

Nazi broadcasts said a furious battle was going on in Szekesfehervar, key base between Lake Balaton and the Danube. On the eighth missed onslaught the Russians broke into the town and violent house to house fighting was raging.

The flare-up in Hungary came as other Soviet armies mopped up German pockets along the Baltic-Oder-Silesia front and wheeled in line for the push against Berlin. German and Russian reports indicated that it might not be long now.

Soviet reports said reinforcements were moving into position on Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's front. It stretches from the Baltic, through the Oder valley 30 miles east of Berlin, and into Silesia where it links up with that of Marshal Ivan S. Konev's first Ukrainian army.

At the northern end of the eastern front, Russian forces estimated by Berlin at 50 divisions 750,000 men stormed through the suburbs of burning Danzig and Gdynia on the Baltic and tightened the noose on the last German teehold in East Prussia around Koenigsberg.

"A gigantic battle of attrition is raging in the entire area south of the Danube," Ernst Von Hammer, German radio commentator, said in reporting the new Red army push toward Austria.

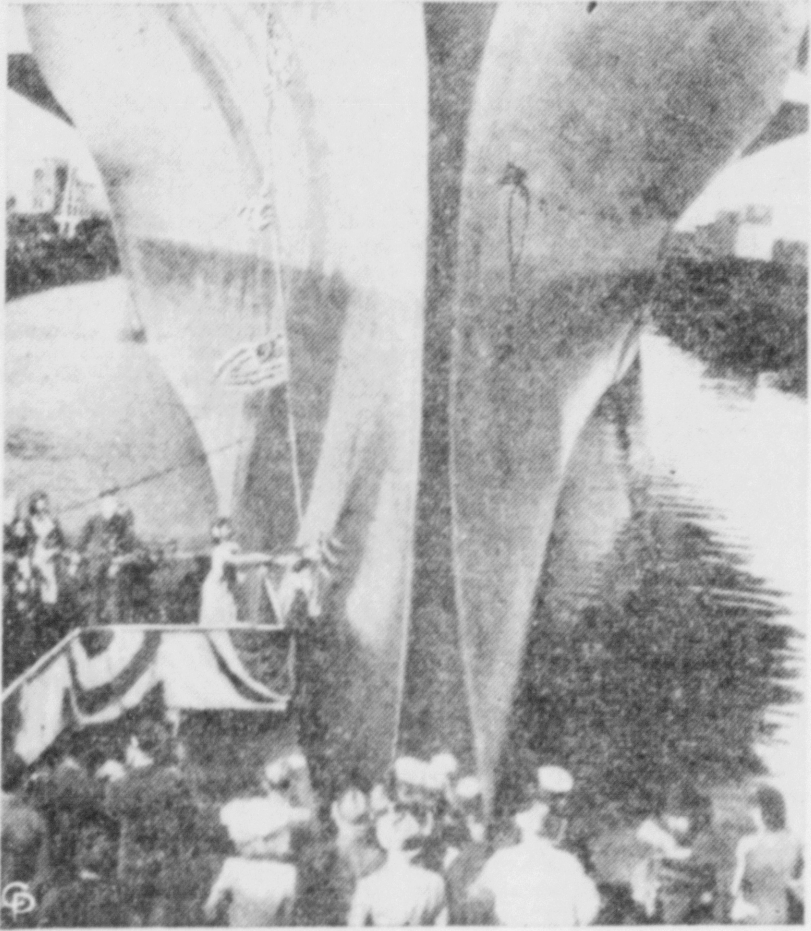

He said the offensive between Lake Balaton and the Danube northwest of Budapest gathered intensity by the hour. The storm center was in the area of Szekesfehervar. Between that key base and Felsogalla the Germans

Civilian Food Supply Will Take Another Drop During Next 3 Months

WASHINGTON, March 22—The amount of food available to American civilians is due to take another drop during the next three months, it was revealed today.

The supply for American fighting men, however, will go up while allocations for foreign relief and similar purposes undergo a slight reduction.

War Food Administration officials gave this picture of the allocation of the total American food supply during April, May and June:

American civilians—73 percent of the total store, compared with 75 in recent months.

U. S. armed forces—17 percent, compared with 14 percent for the first quarter of 1945 and about 13 percent before that.

Lend-Lease—Eight percent. United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, Red Cross and shipments to U. S. territories—two percent.

More than half of all lend-leased food goes to Great Britain, one-third to Russia and the rest to about a dozen other friendly nations. The important role of American food in the United Nations war program is demonstrated by the fact that food exports have expanded 10 times since the pre-war period.

In the face of charges that the administration is shipping too much food overseas for foreign relief, officials pointed out that UNRRA during the next three months will share two percent of the U. S. food supply with the Red Cross and U. S. territories.

UNRRA Director General Herbert H. Lehman said his agency's allocation for the period would amount to 395,000 tons—or one (Continued on Page Two)

FDR'S ENVOY HAS AUDIENCE WITH POPE PIUS

VATICAN CITY, March 22—Pope Pius received Edward J. Flynn, President Roosevelt's personal envoy and New York Democratic leader, in private audience for an hour today.

Washington dispatches said Flynn was believed exploring the possibility of improving relations between the Catholic church and Russia. He travelled to Yalta with President Roosevelt and later conferred with Premier Stalin and other Soviet officials in Moscow.

Myron Taylor, President Roosevelt's representative at the Vatican, introduced Flynn to the Pope and remained with them during the entire audience, which began at 9:30 a. m.

Immediately after the audience, the Pope received Mgr. Giovanni Montini, his assistant secretary of state.

U. S. 5TH FLEET REPORTED NEAR OKINAWA ISLAND

Jap Naval Base May Be New Target Of Fast-Moving Spruance Unit

PANAY VICTORY REPORTED

Tokyo Newspaper Says Nips Face 'Gravest Crisis In Their History'

By United Press
The American Fifth fleet today was reported approaching the Okinawa islands, 300 miles south-east of Japan where it heaped destruction in two days of attacks that evoked an admission from Tokyo that Japan was confronted with its gravest crisis in history.

Pacific fleet headquarters has screened the fleet's activities with a security blackout since its planes crippled 17 enemy warships and wrecked 600 aircraft in Japan's inland sea Sunday and Monday.

Radio Tokyo said the task force with its dozen or more carriers last night was "fleeing at full speed" southward toward waters east of the Okinawa islands, site of an important naval base and several airfields midway between Japan and Formosa.

With Japan's inland sea naval bases still smoldering from Sunday and Monday's attacks, Okinawa might offer a tempting target to Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's fast carriers and their escort of battleships and other warships under Admiral Raymond A. Spruance.

The naval base is situated on Okinawa, largest island in the group of the same name, about midway in the Ryukyu chain running southeast from Kyushu, southernmost of the main Japanese islands.

Okinawa has been bombed on several occasions by carrier-borne planes and also has been attacked by land-based bombers from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command.

The battered Japanese fleet, further crippled by the damaging of 17 of its warships in the inland sea raids, would be powerless to interfere—even should it want to—with any new strikes at the Ryukyus or Japan.

The Japanese were given another setback in the Philippines. American troops and Filipino (Continued on Page Two)

SENATE STUDIES HOUSE APPROVED CORY MEASURE

COLUMBUS, March 22—The Cory bill to reenact the controversial Ross Act relaxing state controls on women's working hours was on its way to the senate today—without the emergency clause which would make it effective before its April 1 expiration date.

The bill was passed by the house after an acrimonious four-hour debate but the emergency fell short of the necessary two-thirds majority after the Democratic minority failed in its efforts to impose a 48-hour ceiling on women's working hours.

The lack of an emergency clause raised the possibility that there might be a three-months period in which war industry would be subject to the regular 48-hour week since ordinary legislation does not become effective for 90 days. The law expires April 1.

The house tax committee, meanwhile, recommended for passage the Fleckner bill leaving the one-cent liquid fuel tax in the general fund for two more years despite heavy pressure from county and township officials. The vote was 19 to one.

The bill was the second renewing expiring state taxes to be recommended for passage in as many days. Both the senate and house tax committees have recommended the renewal of the two-cent cigarette tax. Hearings will be held next week on the utilities excise tax.

War Surpluses Disposal Program Is Criticized By Investigating Group

WASHINGTON, March 22—The senate war investigating committee today reported confusion and delay in the disposal of war surpluses, it called for immediate setting up of rules to prevent "the chaotic conditions, inefficiency and dishonesty" that followed World War I.

Reporting on nearly two years of investigation, the committee said there were opportunities for dishonesty in the present method of handling surpluses.

It gave detailed reports on some of its major investigations. It criticized the part played by the Defense Plant Corp. in auction sales by Jacob Goldberg's Surplus Liquidators, Inc., New York, and it hit the "quick, easy profit" motive behind the Worldwide Mercantile Corp. in which the New York racketeer, Irving (Waxey Gordon) Wexler was involved.

The committee said the first thing needed was a statement of policy from the newly created surplus property board—"this is long overdue."

The committee recommended four principles to guide the disposal program: (1) speed, because large quantities on hand are a threat to the market; (2) simplicity, because a multiplicity of agencies makes it easier for "insiders" with special privileges to operate; (3) extreme care in selection of personnel to prevent leakage of information; and (4) immediate and wide publicity for impending and concluded sales.

Surplus sales should be open to as many bidders as possible, the committee said, and broken up into lots small enough for small business to participate. Whenever feasible, it said, sales should be carried out on the consumer level.

The committee did not offer much detailed criticism of the individual government agencies involved in surplus sales, with the exceptions of the action of the (Continued on Page Two)

Planes Rain More Bombs On Germany

Heaviest Sustained Air Attack Of War Against Reich Continues

LONDON, March 22—American bombers attacked Germany today in the wake of more than 1,000 British night raiders including the biggest force of Mosquitoes ever sent against Berlin.

U. S. Eighth Air Force heavy bombers swept over the Reich by daylight. The Nazi radio said raiders were over northwest, west and southwest Germany as well as Austria.

The heaviest sustained air offensive of the war against the Reich roared through the night with two Mosquito attacks on Berlin and Lancaster heavy bombers assaults on an oil refinery at Hamburg and a benzol plant between Bochum and Dortmund.

One of the two Mosquito forces which crashed blockbusters and other explosives on Berlin was the biggest formation of the speedy plywood bombers ever to hit the capital.

Other Royal Air Force planes mined enemy waters, while night fighters supported the bomber fleets and attacked air fields.

A communique announcing the operations said more than 1,000 planes were in action, and 12 bombers were missing.

The Allied air forces appeared out to match yesterday's 10,000 sorties against the Reich from bases in western Europe, Britain and Italy. The main weight of bombs yesterday was dropped on targets directly behind the Western front.

RAF Mosquitoes bombed Berlin twice during the night, the 30th straight night they have hit the devastated German capital. Some 4,000 tons of block busters and other bombs have been dropped in the nightly raids since they began Feb. 20.

British Lancaster heavy bombers also attacked Germany early this morning, but the target was not specified immediately.

INDIAN LEADER SAYS VIOLENCE MAY BREAK OUT

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22—Dr. Anup Singh, secretary of the national committee for India's freedom, warned today that his country's policy on non-violence against British civil rule in India may not survive further delay in granting India independence.

"India's patience is pretty nearly exhausted," Singh declared, "and we are fed up on the promises which have been made to us, but are never fulfilled."

"If nothing is done within a reasonable time," he added, "Gandhi's policy of non-violence is in great danger of being replaced."

The Indian independence advocate arrived here yesterday from Washington. He said his organization planned to raise a "discreet and diplomatic fuss" at the world security conference here to "expose" the official Indian delegation, which he asserted would be a front for British interests.

JOHN COLLYER IS NAMED NEW RUBBER CZAR

WASHINGTON, March 22—John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., has been appointed special War Production Board director of rubber programs for three months.

WPB Chairman J. A. Krug, making the announcement yesterday, said victory over Germany would bring no substantial reduction in needs for rubber. "A" card holders, he said, had no chance of getting new tires for many months to come.

Collyer added that damage to railroads in Europe made it necessary to depend on tires for transportation. It also will take a lot of rubber to move the Army out, he said.

GERMANY'S LAST GREAT ARSENAL DRIVE'S TARGET

Patton's Men Mopping Up Isolated Resistance In Ludwigshafen

PUSH FOLLOWS AIR BLITZ

6,200 Allied Warplanes Believed To Have Set Off Final Round

PARIS, March 22—American First Army troops opened the battle for the Ruhr on a broad front east of the Rhine today. Late field dispatches said the Yanks were storming the Sieg river line 10 miles from the southern entrance to the Ruhr.

As the First Army struck for the Ruhr, the American Third and Seventh Armies to the South closed with a rush against the last 30-odd miles of the Rhine's west bank held by the Nazis between Ludwigshafen and the Karlsruhe corner.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army veterans mopped up isolated German pockets of resistance inside Ludwigshafen and lashed out to the north and south to wipe out a few thousand survivors of the Nazi first and seventh armies pinned against the bridgeless Rhine.

Saar Battle Near End

The battle of the Saar-Palatinate was all but ended after seven days of swift and overwhelming advance, except for two bitter-end struggles raging in the streets of Mainz on the Rhine and in a narrow stretch of the Siegfried line west of Karlsruhe.

With their southern flank cleared by Patton's sensational breakthrough, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army troops east of the Rhine immediately charged northward in a power drive that threatened momentarily to spill across the narrow Sieg river into the southern flank of the Ruhr—Germany's last great military arsenal.

Front reports said armored and infantry divisions were battling for a crossing of the Sieg on a winding 10-mile front stretching eastward from the river's confluence with the Rhine to the factory town of Siegburg.

The attack opened late yesterday in the wake of a tremendous aerial bombardment that spread fire and ruin across a vast chain of German road and railway communications linking the imperiled Ruhr with central Germany.

Gas Dump Blown Up

One formation of British raiders blew up a huge German underground gasoline and ammunition dump near Deventer in Holland. It was believed to be the enemy's biggest supply depot on the front facing the British Second and Canadian First armies.

FLOOD THREATS OVER; RIVER STARTS TO FALL

The Scioto river stage went on the decline late Wednesday night after reaching a crest of 19 feet at 10 p. m. Fair weather Thursday, for the first time in four days, held no threats of rain over the residents of Circleville. Fears of continued flood were erased as the water level dropped .69 feet early Thursday to a stage of 18.31 feet.

The highway department reported that all roads in Pickaway county with the exception of Route 36 were open. U. S. highway 23 is still closed near Chillicothe, but bus service is being maintained over a detour.

No rain is forecast for this vicinity during the next 24 hours, Frost is predicted for Thursday night with fair and warmer weather Friday.

The Ohio river remained stationary at 38 feet yesterday with no anticipation of a rise. The river stage at Portsmouth was also stationary at 27 feet.

High temperature Wednesday recorded at the Circleville weather bureau was 57 degrees, low temperature Thursday 35 degrees. Precipitation for the 24 hour period ending Thursday at 7 a. m. was .58 inches.

Defense Plant corp. in the Goldberg case.

The Reconstruction Finance Corp., parent organization of the DPC, immediately issued a statement complaining that the committee failed to list "any" of the recent steps it had taken to improve surplus sales.

The RFC said the committee, among other things, failed to mention the new RFC investigation unit set up to check on irregularities in surplus disposal. Other improvements mentioned, RFC declared, were plans to give wide publicity to sales.

In a separate discussion of overseas holdings, the committee said the armed forces should decide now what movable objects must be left in Europe and what can be used in the Pacific war. It added a warning, however, that after the last war the withdrawing Americans left such quantities of surplus goods that "they continued to glut the markets for many years."

"We must be careful not to permit our war surpluses to become a liability," the report said. "They can be a great national asset."

GERMANY'S LAST GREAT ARSENAL DRIVE'S TARGET

Patton's Men Mopping Up Isolated Resistance In Ludwigschafen

the attack over western and northwestern Germany again this morning.

The blazing air blow, involving upwards of 6,200 Allied warplanes, electrified the entire Allied battle line drawn up against the Rhine from the Swiss border to the North sea. Observers speculated freely that the final round of the war was on. Berlin said all German troops had been alerted against an airborne assault on the Rhine in conjunction with a general offensive by the American Ninth and 15th and the Canadian First and British Second armies.

Doughboys of the 78th Infantry division sparked the assault on the Sieg river, charging northward from the east bank suburbs of Bonn against weakening enemy resistance. They swept up seven towns and villages in a three-mile advance to the river and hurled weak German rear guards back across the stream.

Field dispatches said the Nazis apparently were hoping to stave off the First Army rush behind the Sieg barrier, but the narrow river was not expected to prove a formidable obstacle.

Unidentified American armored forces on the 78th's right flank picked up the attack during the night. They raced ahead almost three miles along the six-lane Nazi military highway linking the southern Rhineland to the Ruhr and Berlin, and reached the Sieg directly opposite Siegburg. Buisdorf, one mile southeast of Siegburg, was entered before dawn.

Big Guns Pound Nazis

Other First Army troops wheeled two miles east of the highway toward Hennef, three miles southeast of Siegburg, ramming to within 1 1/2 miles of the Cologne-Lindburg highway.

American field guns massed behind the Sieg poured a barrage across the river into the German lines in support of the ground attack.

The bridgehead now measured about 26 miles in width along the Rhine bank and about eight miles inland from the river. United Press War Correspondent John McDermott reported that the collapse of the Ludendorff bridge at Remagen already had been compensated for by the construction of "several" emergency bridges, one capable of carrying up to 42 tons.

Ludwigschafen, Germany's greatest chemical producing center and her fourth inland port, was safely in American hands before nightfall yesterday, although scattered resistance was still continuing early today.

Units of an unidentified American armored division rammed into the city yesterday afternoon and raced quickly to the river front in a futile attempt to capture the double-track railway and highway bridge into Mannheim. The bridge already had been destroyed by Nazi demolition crews before the Americans arrived.

Patton's 94th infantry division followed the tanks into Ludwigschafen for the house-to-house clean-up.

Third Army tank columns were charging in on the Rhine on both sides of Ludwigschafen against little or no enemy opposition. Two task forces converged from the north and northeast on Speyer, a river crossing point 10 miles south of Ludwigschafen. One reached Bohl, six miles northwest of Speyer, and a second drove four miles south of Ludwigschafen along the river bank to a point six miles north of Speyer.

FARMERS URGED TO GET SOYBEAN INOCULANTS NOW

Farmers who intend to plant soybeans are urged to order their inoculants early this Spring. John G. Boggs, Pickaway county AAA chairman warned that last year a heavy late minute rush quickly exhausted dealers supplies of inoculants. Uninoculated soybean seeds does not produce the yield that properly inoculated does.

Soybeans, when supplied with the proper nodule-forming bacteria through inoculation, states the Soybean Digest, American Soybean Association publication, obtain the nitrogen necessary to grow through the air. To thus aid the soybean plant to tap the atmosphere's inexhaustible nitrogen supply may result in increased yields as high as 10 bushels to the acre.

Uninoculated seed, the digest states, must mine soil nitrogen, exhausting soil fertility. It is important and patriotic during war to conserve all possible fertility. Commercial nitrogen is needed for explosives, is rationed and will become more scarce. Crops, they say, that follow the inoculated soybean crops usually have higher yields.

HOUSE GROUP STARTS WORK ON DRAFT MEASURE

WASHINGTON, March 22—The house military affairs committee tackles legislation today to extend the selective service law beyond its present May 15 expiration date.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, and Army and Navy representatives were called to a closed session of the committee. There were indications that it might be asked to approve the pending bill immediately. The measure, sponsored by committee chairman Andrew H. May, D. Ky., would extend the law for the duration of the war.

However, committee members expected that attempts would be made to amend the bill along these lines in response to complaints being heard in congress:

1. To fix a definite training period for draftees in answer to protests that 18-year-olds have been sent into combat after a few months of training.
2. To establish a rotation system by law to assure furroughs home for combat troops after long service overseas.
3. To reaffirm the Tydings amendment to defer irreplaceable workers in essential farm production.

OPA ANNOUNCES SEVERAL GAS COUPONS TO EXPIRE

WASHINGTON, March 22—The Office of Price Administration said today that E-5, C-5, E-1 and R-1 gasoline coupons and all D coupons not serially numbered will not be good after March 31.

Most of these types of coupons have been used up, OPA said, and it is desirable to remove from circulation the few remaining in hands of consumers.

OPA announced that first quarter 1945 T coupons also will expire on March 31.

EXTENSION OF CURFEW FAILS

would be designed for those outside New York and would contain little news for citizens of his own city. He scheduled the broadcast, however, before entertainment leaders decided at a meeting last night to respect the midnight curfew set by War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes rather than the 1 a. m. closing set by LaGuardia.

The night club, theater, cafe and saloon owners did not desert LaGuardia, however. They said they would ask for a hearing in Washington on the wisdom of a midnight curfew for the city.

Some neighborhood bars and small clubs continued to take advantage of the extra-hour offered them last Sunday by LaGuardia in his weekly radio broadcast, pending new developments in the controversy.

The decision to ignore the one-hour extension followed an Army-Navy crackdown on after-midnight drinking and entertainment by all military personnel. The two services ordered full and immediate observance of the original curfew request of War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes. The gist of the owner's decision was that if they couldn't serve service men during the extra hour they couldn't serve civilians.

The Army crackdown came first, hitting New York with lightning suddenness Tuesday night. Military police appeared at nightclubs, bars and dancehalls and told the managers to clear their places of all "servicemen."

The Navy followed through with a similar order for Sailors, Marines and Coast Guardsmen yesterday.

LaGuardia had yet to comment on the action taken by the entertainment industry. His comment on President Roosevelt's statement that he did not approve of curfew violation was terse.

"He's running the country. I'm just running the city," LaGuardia said.

The entertainment industry was left on the spot, from which it departed quickly. Monte Proser, owner of the Copacabana in announcing that his club would close at midnight henceforth said: "The President runs the country, the mayor runs the city, and I just run a cafe."

Arthur Garfield Hays, attorney for the Allied Food and entertainment industries, announced that the organization, which includes most of the city's swank clubs, would follow the Byrnes' curfew but added:

"We are asking Washington for one of the first rights of American citizens—the right to a hearing. We think we can prove to the government that the 12 o'clock curfew in New York is a mistake."

Guerillas crushed the last organized enemy resistance on Panay with the capture of Iloilo, the capital.

American bombers in the Philippines stepped up their aerial offensive and destroyed or damaged 13 Japanese vessels, including five small warships. The attacks ranged from the eastern Philippines to the China coast.

The Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri Hochi said that Japan was confronted with its "gravest crisis since the beginning of our history."

The newspaper, as quoted by the Domei agency and recorded by FCC, charged that the Allies planned "to wipe Japan and the Japanese people off the face of the earth."

The war department at Washington announced that a sizeable task force of B-29 superfortresses, flying from bases in India, raided the big Burmese port of Rangoon today. The attack, aimed at military and storage targets, was the second in less than a week on Rangoon.

The Japanese reported that 120 American superfortresses, liberators and lightnings raided Japanese-held Hainan island off the south China coast yesterday. The report was not confirmed.

TERRACE PLAN WILL SAVE SOIL FOR FARMERS

A soil-saving practice, called "standard and diversion terraces", is part of the 1945 AAA farm program for Ohio.

The Pickaway county AAA office announced Thursday that farmers bothered by the loss of soil during heavy rains in the past few days should get in touch with members of the county committee and have them explain the AAA program to prevent more soil waste.

Under the plan water which ordinarily rushes down slopes is slowed down or by-passed so that it does not wash away topsoil. A diversion terrace will take water around the hill so that it will travel slower or puddle. Many farmers also build diversion terraces to change the course of the run-off water so that it cannot run over the field.

A payment will be made under the 1945 AAA farm program for the proper construction of standard and diversion terraces. The payment is $1 per 100 lineal feet in exchange for the present class

ASHVILLE FIRST COUNTY TEAM TO GET TO FINALS

Pickaway County Has Never Had Previous Five In State Tourney

Ashville high school cagers will step into the most select company any Pickaway county has ever had when they go after the state Class B championship Saturday at Springfield.

No Pickaway county team has reached the state tournament in the 16 years the present setup has been in effect. The farthest a previous team has gone is the finals of the district tournament.

Three years ago a strong Pickaway team lost out in the district finals. The Asheville club became the first to represent the county in regional play when it emerged as the best team in the upper bracket of the district tournament at Westerville and became the first regional champion from the county by winning at Logan last weekend. The regional plan was inaugurated since the war started to cut down on travel by competing teams.

Old timers recalled that an earlier Asheville team once competed in a state tournament at Asheville. About 1913 the school was invited to send a team to an invitational tournament. There was no distinction at that time between teams and both of what are now called "A" and "B" teams played together. All teams competing were invited. Asheville placed third or fourth, it was recalled.

The present team has now reached what would be semi-finals of the state tournament of the plan in effect before the war.

The Broncos will oppose Northridge, champion of the Springfield regional tournament, in the 1:30 p. m. game Saturday. Northridge team is reported to be not too large, with only one six-footer.

Ashville is favored to win the game and go into the finals Saturday night against Columbiana, which is favored over Sandusky St. Mary's in the other afternoon game. The Asheville boys will leave Friday afternoon and plan a workout on the Otterbein gym floor in preparation for the tournament.

Coach L. W. Fullen and coaches of the other teams in the tournament are scheduled to speak at 5:45 p. m. Friday over radio station WIZE.

BY NELSON FINALLY WINS CHARLOTTE GOLF TOURNEY

The triumph came yesterday when he shot a three-under par 69, while Sneed, his lame back aching from the six day grind, took a 73.

PLAYERS HEAD BACK TO GAME

WMC Ruling Expected To Send War Working Stars To Camps

WASHINGTON, March 22 — Assurance that the government will not challenge their patriotism if they leave war jobs to play professional baseball was expected today to bring a host of top stars back to the game.

The most encouraging aspect of the latest "green light" from the administration was that War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt went out of his way to praise the sport when he ruled that players in war jobs during the off-season could return to baseball without fear of being drafted as job jumpers.

"There is real justification for this action," McNutt said. "We have considerable evidence that baseball adds to the morale on the home front in wartime."

He added that the principal basis for his action was the widespread demand particularly on the part of servicemen in this country and overseas for the continuance of baseball.

McNutt's ruling, which includes managers and coaches, but does not affect other employees of baseball clubs, states that men employed in essential jobs during the off-season do not need to obtain statements of availability from their employers to play during the regular season. Previously, players who went into essential jobs would have been classed as job-jumpers if they returned to baseball without special permission from the U. S. Employment Service. The U. S. E. S. had no authority to issue such permits.

It was emphasized that McNutt's ruling will not keep a player from being drafted if he is physically able to go into military service. Thus physically fit men in war plants who hold deferments because of dependency could not return to baseball without taking their chances in the regular processes of the military draft.

However, because of official sanction of baseball with certain provisions, from President Roosevelt, Selective Service Director Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey, Defense Transportation Director J. Monroe Johnson, War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes, and Secretary of War Henry Stimson, there is no doubt now that it must continue as a "war-contributing" service.

Although older, physically fit players with families may hesitate to turn again to baseball because of the President's admonition that he felt that healthy men should be playing, they need not worry about being drafted simply because they are athletes.

The biggest boost was to 4-Fs in war plants and those now playing who had feared induction for limited service if they continued in the game.

McNutt limited the ruling to men who were in baseball last year and who "have contractual relationships with a particular club either in the form of a continuing contract for two or more seasons or of an option for the current season."

"Such men may be considered recalled to their principal employment—baseball—without the formality of obtaining availability certificates," he said.

DEPAUL, MIKAN BREAK RECORDS, REACH FINALS

NEW YORK, March 22 — The old proverb of "fighting fire with fire" never had a truer application today than in the case of Depaul's brilliant basketball team.

Facing the Rhode Island State Rams, the nation's highest scoring team last night, the Blue Demons, led by the six-foot, nine-inch George Mikan, beat the Rams at their own games, 97 to 53, and set 12 Madison Square Garden scoring records in the process.

The victory gave Depaul a place in the finals of the national invitational tournament Friday night against Bowling Green of Ohio. The Ohioans moved up by eliminating the defending champion St. John's Redmen, 57 to 44, in a mild upset.

Mikan equalled the scoring output of the entire Rhode Island team in making 53 points to set a new national college mark, surpassing the one held by Hank Luisetti of Stanford. By national consequence it enabled him to top all existing garden marks for tournament and regular play, not only on total points but on field goals and free throws. Meanwhile, the 97 points by Depaul erased a Garden mark of 85 set this season by New York University, and sent sundry other marks of the big auditorium to oblivion.

CARDINALS DECIDE TO STICK IT OUT AT CAIRO

CAIRO, Ill., March 22—The St. Louis Cards, deciding to stick it out for a while at least, saw their baseball diamond today for the first time since opening training here earlier in the week. It has been covered with flood waters which are receding slowly. The diamond is being put in shape and it was hoped that the team could work out on it by the time Manager Billy Southworth arrived tomorrow.

How to Greet a Wounded Soldier

Charlie Jenkins got back from overseas the other day, discharged for wounds... and he was pretty well banged up.

Naturally, our town felt mighty bad about it. We wanted to sympathize with him and help him. But Doc Walters set us straight about that.

He said that what Charlie wanted most was to be accepted as one of the gang again... as if nothing had happened. So we asked him over to pitch horseshoes with his good hand, and enjoy a friendly glass of beer and chew the fat like old times.

And you should have seen him pick up! From being scared of meeting people, Charlie got his confidence back and soon became his own self again.

From where I sit, Doc Walters gave us the right steer. The wounded men coming home don't want our sympathy or our overenthusiastic help. They want to be treated like the rest of us... with a chance to work and lead a normal life. And that's the least we can offer them.

NO SOFTNESS NOW!

THERE are many rumors lately of peace "feelings" from our enemies, especially the Germans, who are hard pressed and growing desperate. It would probably be possible to get rather favorable terms. It is recognized by most Americans, however, as well as by our European allies, that it would be a great mistake to end the war now, or any part of it, before complete victory is won and the enemy lies prostrate, at the mercy of the nations he tried to destroy. No sensible man or woman wants peace until permanent peace is assured—not a mere armistice such as the last peace proved to be.

This is particularly true in the Pacific war, where as yet we have only begun to fight. There is no question of our steadfastness in that task. But it would be a mistake to ease our pressure on Germany in any way, even with a view to diverting strength more quickly against Japan.

THE VALUE OF WORK

WORK is the great bulwark against personality disintegration," said Dr. Karl Menninger, head of the Menninger Foundation for Psychiatric Research, in a recent lecture. "The psychiatric casualty discharge rate from the armed services is 1,000 a day. Some of these men will need medical care, but many will not need it when restored to the anchorages of home and job. None of these former soldiers should be discriminated against because of the category of their discharge."

It is, of course, true that some of these soldiers were neurotic in civilian life and war merely increased their troubles. But many, also, were normal. Asked whether such work as the repetition of the same motions over and over all day long were not bad for people, Dr. Menninger replied "Not necessarily. Did you ever watch a woman knit?" She enjoys the repetitious movement. So do musicians practicing runs and difficult passages. But it is fair to observe that to be healing and constructive, work needs the factor of accomplishment. If the factory worker knows he is making something useful, if the woman sees a sweater grow in her hands, if the pianist is producing something lovely to hear, craftsmanship is present, always beneficial.

The thing to remember about these men is that most of them are normal in normal life. It is war itself which is out of step.

Old maps of the West used to show the Great American Desert. Future European maps are likely to show the Great German Desert.

What to believe? Statements of government draft officials that enough food for probably two years is in storage, or the contention of some other federal agencies that the nation is about to go on a diet? Take the young farm workers into armed service, the draft bureau ordered. Beware, warns other bureaus. And the general public sits befuddled in between.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 22—What will happen to those War Bonds you are so patriotically buying and should be storing away, was threshed out between the treasury and financially wary senators in the debt increase hearings—but not generally observed.

It is enough to lay the snide-stories impinging the integrity of those bonds, and, in fact, clear the whole post-war atmosphere, not only as to government finance, but on prices, business, taxes and all economic policies.

Treasury Undersecretary Bell agreed with the senators that the government must have, and will get, whatever controls are necessary to maintain the full face of all war loans.

The government cannot afford to let them drop to 82 this time, as after the last war, simply because the whole financial equilibrium of the country is, this time, inextricably involved in the bond value balance. The banks, for instance, own about $96,000,000,000 of the debt and will get about $20,000,000,000 to $25,000,000,000 more of it annually.

The government simply cannot afford to let the bonds drop without letting the banks drop, and these institutions are indeed now guaranteed by the government (FDIC).

To fulfill its necessities in this respect, Mr. Bell laid out a course of action, under senatorial promptings (from Byrd, Hawkes and Milliken mostly) which carries sound expectations.

Rather large refunding operations will have to pay those people who want to cash in to buy autos, radios, etc. New bonds will be issued to raise that amount of cash. To handle this operation the government will have to support the bond market ("manipulate it") is the way one senator put it.)

A bill is now being passed cutting the gold reserve behind the dollar to 25 percent, which will give the Federal Reserve System the tidy bookkeeping credit of $36,000,000,000 for such support.

This should be enough (they all agreed) if the government cuts expenses and keeps taxes up (Messrs. Wallace, radicals and Keynes theorists, please note.) In short, the government can no longer afford freely to finance domestic and world WPA's and keep faith with the people on the bonds they hold, but must curtail and watch its financial step in order that high taxes may be sufficient to support government without further deficit financing.

Furthermore it must encourage a high level of business activity in order to get enough tax revenues to sustain itself, its bonds and expenditures. Thus its course is a required one, and not a choice as between a spending or a non-spending policy. Only wise and thrifty management is permitted by the expected debt of $292,000,000,000 (June 1946) and every dollar of debt adds difficulty to the problem.

Mr. Wallace and his friends should remember government bonds and the faith of the government pledged to the people who bought them, when their free spending "humane" policies are proposed.

The post-war reconversion must be handled with similar skill and care, because widespread unemployment would force the government to expenditures

Cuts and Abrasions Easily Medicated

A READER writes:—"Please write a column giving instructions for caring for cuts, abrasions, skinned knees and elbows, grinding bits of dirt and sand into the flesh. Should the wound be cleansed with clear water, soap or only a disinfectant? Should some ointment be applied? Should it be kept covered all the time or exposed to the air?"

In these times of doctor and nurse shortages many such conditions will have to be treated by the folks at home, so these are good questions.

The treatment has not changed in any way from that recommended in first aid classes of ten or even twenty years ago.

The First Principle

The first principle involved is one of the cardinal rules of surgery. The story is told that a former pupil who was starting in practice came to call on his mentor, the celebrated Irish physician, William Stokes, for some last advice. He had left the house when the old gentleman rushed to the door and called out—"Oh, and, Gerald, don't do too much!"

So that is the first principle of action with abrasions of the kind mentioned in the above letter. The tendency to get out all the grains of dirt must be restrained. Nature finally works them out herself and you can well let her alone. Nature abhors not only a vacuum, but a foreign body.

Surgical Cleanliness

Equally important is complete surgical cleanliness—asepsis. Nothing should touch the wound that has not been cleansed or boiled. Cleansed refers to the hands of the operator. They should be washed and soaped and the nails scrubbed with a nailbrush that has been boiled.

If you decide to try to get the dirt out, the water used should have been boiled. It can be squeezed over the wound from a sponge made of rubber gauze. Using a pair of tweezers that have also been boiled you can pick out the larger grains of dirt, but don't try to get them all unless it is easy.

Then it is good practice to paint the wound with an antiseptic. Old-fashioned tincture of iodine is effective, but it stings, and if the area is very sensitive, mercurochrome, which does not sting, is just as good.

The wound should be covered and, of course, the gauze which does the covering must be sterile, obtainable at any drug store. Never touch with your hands the surface of the gauze that is to be applied to the wound. Cut off a piece of appropriate size with a pair of scissors that have been boiled, and holding it by two corners place it over the wound. In that way the surface which touches the wound has not been contaminated.

Sterile vaseline, or other ointment, may be laid over the wound to keep the gauze from sticking, but that is not absolutely necessary.

Street and sidewalk dirt carries little hazard of lockjaw nowadays, and you had better get advice before trying to use anti-tetanus serum.

HELEN COMES HOME

by Watkins E. Wright

SYNOPSIS

HELEN MILLER is an attractive young woman of 26, who has been jilted by a playboy. PAUL WENTWORTH, a southern plantation owner, who married ZOE NORRIS. Helen lives in an apartment with war plant trainee AGGIE JONES, a pleasant, 30-year-old self-confessed "old maid," who urges Helen to try to mend her broken heart by dating PHILIP BROWNELL, foreman and manager of the war plant owned and operated by Helen's AUNT MINERVA, a shrewd business woman who drives a hard bargain and hopes to match Brownell and her niece during Philip's stay in New York on vacation.

YESTERDAY: Paul Wentworth tells Helen that Zoe, the girl with whom he eloped, is in Washington and that she does not understand him. He asks Helen to fly with him some time, and though Helen dismisses his complaints, she finds that facing him and all her old friends on the same evening is somewhat of a strain.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
"THE BLUE PLANE," said Paul, "has a lot of new gadgets now."

"What sort of new gadgets?" Helen asked.

"Things necessary, now that she is doing war duty. I thought you might like to come out some time and have a look at it."

"I would like to see it," Helen admitted.

"Good!" "Perhaps I'll drive out some time with Philip."

"Does he have to go everywhere you do?"

"Oh, no, but I no longer have a car, neither does Aunt Minerva."

"I've got one."

"What? With the gasoline shortage, and rubber conservation?"

"Being a plantation owner, miles from town, I get a few concessions."

"I see."

"I can very easily pick you up some day at the factory and drive you out. We could have a short flight, too, before it gets dark."

"Never mind," said Helen. "I'll just drive out some fine day with Nebuchadnezzar."

"Is that a promise?"

"I promise nothing at all, Paul," Helen said. "I'm making no plans now."

"Okay! But you can't keep a man from hoping."

"I suppose not. Not even a man who never knows his own mind five minutes in a row."

"I know mine, all right."

"Really? Then you must be growing up at last."

"Don't be catty, Helen. That's not your line."

"What is my line? I'd really like to know."

"You haven't any."

"Imagine that!" said Helen. "A girl of today without a line!"

They danced in silence for a few moments. Then Paul said: "So long as we've both come home, Helen, don't you think we ought to make the most of it?"

"That depends upon what you consider making the most of it," she retorted.

Just then the music came to a stop, and she saw Philip coming to meet her. She went to meet him. Paul at her heels. A handsome man waiting for her and a handsome man following. Not bad. She thought more seriously, what was going to be the outcome of it all?

Meanwhile, up in Washington, Zoe Wentworth was taking her fun where she found it; which happened to be, at the moment, in a theater where a comedy hit was playing before having its Broadway opening.

She was the guest of Mike Waterman. Mike Roark, her hostess, was also a guest, as well as a middle-aged man in the uniform of an army officer. "A sort of minor major among a lot of filing cabinets," as he jokingly expressed it. They first dined at Mike's hotel, which happened to be the most fashionable and most expensive one in the city. They now occupied four seats well down front.

"I practically had to bribe half the people in Washington," he said, "to get them."

"And," Mrs. Roark said, "Mike Waterman always gets what he wants."

"Not always," he retorted, giving Zoe a swift glance.

She pretended not to see and centered her attention on the stage. It was fun being in Washington with people like Mike Roark. Mike Waterman and Major Carstairs, certainly a lot more fun than being stuck away out on the Wentworth plantation, waiting for Paul to return from overseeing the planting or from one of his flights. This, she told herself, was the sort of life she was cut out for—the sort of life she had thought would be hers when she married Paul. Only he had had different plans, once he had taken her for his wife. He was wonderful in lots of ways, Paul was, and she had been absolutely mad about him. If she hadn't been, she wouldn't have stolen him from the Miller girl. But now, with the world filled with exciting happenings, a plantation was no place to live, even with a man you'd once been mad about. No, Washington was more her style.

The curtain went down on the second act, and Mrs. Roark touched her arm.

"Let's slip into the ladies' room," she said.

"That's a good idea," Zoe said.

They went up the aisle with the two men. In the foyer Mrs. Roark said: "You two men be good while Zoe and I make ourselves beautiful."

"Is that necessary?" said Mike.

"Is what necessary—you two being good or we two making ourselves beautiful?"

"The latter," said Mike.

"We'll be good," said the major.

"We're satisfied with our girls, aren't we, Mike?"

"You bet we are! Couldn't find more charming companions if we looked high and low."

"You old flatterer, you!" said Mrs. Roark, and patted his cheek.

"We won't be gone long."

"Better not be," said the major.

"We shall be devastated."

In the ladies' room, Mrs. Roark said: "They're darlings, aren't they?"

"Yes," agreed Zoe, "they are. Sometimes I think the older men are nicer than the younger ones."

"That's because they've learned a lot of things from a lot of women."

"That," said Zoe, "makes them sound a bit shrewd, don't you think?"

"No, of course not." Mrs. Roark touched up her lips and did things to her lashes. "Of course you know Mike Waterman's in love with you?"

"No, I didn't know it," said Zoe.

Zoe Wentworth was taking her fun where she found it; which happened to be, at the moment, in a theater where a comedy hit was playing before having its Broadway opening.

She was the guest of Mike Waterman. Mike Roark, her hostess, was also a guest, as well as a middle-aged man in the uniform of an army officer. "A sort of minor major among a lot of filing cabinets," as he jokingly expressed it. They first dined at Mike's hotel, which happened to be the most fashionable and most expensive one in the city. They now occupied four seats well down front.

"I'm not so sure I am lucky."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often
Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 5 pints a day. Frequent or easy passages with burning and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Fred Allen picture, "It's in the Bag," soon to be released. Bendix the tough mug roles he usually portrays on the screen.

they might catch cold."

tribute has been paid to Bob

Molly. Saluting their neighbor just before signing off their own program recently, Fibber said,
"Folks, about this time of year everybody is handing out awards bons and Oscars. Tonight we'd like to hand out one of our own. This is the first, last and only "Fibber McGee & Molly Annual Award" for services far and beyond the call of duty."

Then Molly read the "citation":
"To America's number one soldier in grease-paint. To the one-man vaudeville circuit, who has brought honor to the radio industry and glory to himself for the untiring work he has done—and is doing—to entertain our servicemen in camps and hospitals all over the world, without regard to his own health, comfort or safety—our hearty admiration and re-

People At Home Know More About War Than Men In CBI, McGran Says

"People here at home know more about the CBI war than the men who are making the news over there", Technician Fifth Grade Arthur McGran, home after 26 months in China, Burma and India, said Thursday.

McGran, a member of the 330th engineers battalion, said he was one of the first men in his outfit to return to the United States on the Army rotation plan.

Corporal McGran said that people over here know more about what is going on in the CBI theatre than the men over there. Most of the GI's know very little about the Ledo road, which his unit was working on, other than what they actually are working on. This is only a small part of the whole operation.

There was no Post Exchange at his post but PX rations such as candy, cigarettes, soap, magazines and razor blades were brought in to the area periodically. They were fortunate, McGran said, in getting four cartons of cigarettes each month. There was one exception to this when things were at their roughest peak they only got three cartons each, but that only lasted for a short while, he said.

Some things changed in the 26 months he was away from this country. Corporal McGran recalled that while he was at Camp Claiborne, La. there were midget radios for sale on the shelves of Post stores. Now there are not only no radios but lots of other things are no longer on sale.

The only Pickaway county soldier that he saw while he was overseas was Steve Petrunak, who was attached to the engineers. He ran across him in Burma, but didn't see much of him.

Corporal McGran is glad to be home, he said, but wished it were for good. After his 21 day furlough home he has to report to the army reassignment center at Miami, Florida. He has no idea what future assignment he will receive.

Prior to his assignment in Burma he was stationed at the Hudson Bay where the army engineers were building the air base at Fort Churchill.

price-fixing and OPA regulations as long as a shortage of goods threatens to bring more inflation.

Also is not its responsibility for stable prices, against inflation, for good-business and soundness, now greater than its responsibility for, say housing or any other spending policy with which it comes into conflict?

So many people now hold bonds and will hold them that this public interest has become paramount to any other governmental or class interest.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

(Continued from Page Six) which would add to its inability to meet the bond payments soundly, and to keep enough business going to pay the interest on the debt.

If these reasonable projects fail, then Mr. Bell seemed to agree with the senators that the Federal Reserve System will have to issue currency to pay the expenses of the government. (Indeed, Senator Byrd, argued, not without grounds that if the government is to buy all bonds the inflationary result will be the same as issuing money.)

But they both meant that if the government cannot make things add up, it will have to go into further and further inflation, higher and higher prices, cheaper and cheaper dollars.

From this you can see there is chance whatever that your war bond cannot be met 100 cents on the dollar. The only chance of depreciation is not in the bond, but in the dollar. The post-war obligation of the government, in keeping faith with the people for their bond purchases, therefore is to protect and stabilize the value of that dollar.

You bought the bond, at, say, current price levels. It cost you a certain amount of work. The government will have broken faith with you if it lets prices double and pays you off three, five or ten years hence with dollars that represent twice as much work and half as much purchasing power in terms of bread, butter, milk and rents.

Does this condition not also require the government to establish certain definite economic policies for post-war, and not go running off into social ventures and experiments? Certainly it requires
